Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sir;

Your attention is invited to the report of Agent Buchanan, of your office, dated October 1, 1927. Particular reference is made to both the caption and sub-caption thereof. The caption; i. e. "UNITED STATES vs WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD ET AL" is incorrect. The words "United States vs" are superfluous and unnecessary. In the sub-caption, instead of the sections only of the Acts involved being specified, the nature of the offense or offenses should be therein set forth. This is in accordance with the provisions of the Manual relative thereto.

Very truly yours,

Director.

Re: WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD - Fugitive

spiracy to Violate Espionage Act.

Dear Sir:

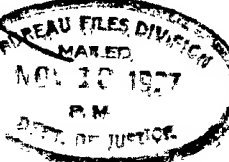

Reference is made to the report of Special Agent S. E. Lefko, Chicago, Illinois, dated October 28, 1927, in the above entitled case, and it is noted that the words "fugitive" and "I. O. #1000" do not appear in the title after the name of subject.

Your attention is directed to Chapter 5, Section 4, paragraph 1, page 187 of the Manual, regarding the captioning of fugitive reports.

The Bureau desires that you call this paragraph to the attention of Agent Lefko and the other Agents of your office and advise them that they should adhere strictly to the instructions set forth therein, as failure to properly caption reports results in the loss of much time in the handling of same at this office.

Very truly yours,

Director.

DETAILS:		AT CHICAGO, ILLINOIS:
In the above mentioned report, a list of names of persons with whom subject corresponded while in the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas. was obtained by the Kansas City office and forwarded to this office. However, a check of the names was made, but without results. Most of the persons named were either officials of the Government, persons connected with the I. W. W. movement or members of certain organizations in sympathy with that movement. In view of the recent I.W. W. situation in the State of Colorado, in connection with strikes in that State, it is deemed possible that some of the subjects might have been or are now in the Denver office territory. The Denver office is requested to make such investigation as is deemed advisable through possible informants or otherwise for some lead as to subject's whereabouts. For information of the Denver office letter dated 6/9/27 sent to the Director, containing data for issuance of I.O. is attached to the Denver office copies of this report. R.U.C.

Report of this Agent, dated Nov. 28, 1927.

DETAILS:

There have been no new developments in this case since submitting last report. However, it is believed that Agent can obtain information through informants which may prove of value in the location of some of the Subjects in this case.

DETAILS:

A number of addresses of persons with whom Subjects corresponded while incarcerated in the United States Penitentiary at Leavenworth are contained in the file. While it is realized that these letters were all written during the year 1918 and the senders may be difficult to locate, Agent is preparing a list of the most probable persons to locate and same will be submitted for investigation by other offices.

This agent's report of December 29, 1927.

DETAILS:AT CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.

In the January 25th, 1928, issue of the Chicago Tribune, an article appeared relative to subject HAYWOOD, written by Henry Whales, Chicago Tribune Press Service, this article having been sent from Moscow, Russia January 24th, 1928. Same is an interview had by Correspondent Whales with subject Haywood. In this same article Haywood is quoted as saying: "I guess I will remain here until I die. I am 59 now, and do not expect to return to the United States." A photograph of subject Haywood also appeared with this article, and this photograph, together with the article, is attached to the Director's copies of this report.

While this agent was in Northern Michigan on other matters, inquiry was made relative to the other subjects in this case, but no information was obtained as to whereabouts, nor were subjects known, although their photographs were shown to PAUL NELSON, U.S. Deputy Marshal, and several other persons who reside in the mining district of the so-called Upper Peninsula Michigan, which was formerly the center of I.W.W. activities due to the large Finnish population, and from which the I.W.W. Organization drew many memberships.

U.S. Will Go Red-Some Day, Haywood Says

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1928; By The Chicago Tribune.]
MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Jan. 24.—Big Bill Haywood has just completed his memoirs entitled "Against the Current," which will be published in Russia, the United States, France and Germany.

"The manuscript makes 600 pages with illustrations, about strikes I figured in at Cripple Creek, Colo., Lawrence, Mass., Paterson, N. J., and Mesaba Range, Minn., dealing with my activities in America until 1921 when I came to Moscow," Big Bill said. "Now I am starting another book about my life in Russia."

I found the former I. W. W. leader sitting in a dingy little room of the Lux hotel, where the Soviets house international workers. The smell of cooking pervaded the place, coming from one corner of the room, which has been fitted up as a kitchenette, because Haywood scarcely is able to walk due to the rheumatism in his legs. His Russian bride was preparing a simple supper of red cabbage, soup, pork chops and tea.

Expects to Stay in Russia.

Wearing an old flannel dressing gown, Big Bill was reading a Sept. 9 issue of Liberty Weekly, having just finished my story about Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in Paris.

The aviator interests the fugitive from American justice intensely. He asked what the American hero's politics were and if he was interested in Russia, remarking, "I remember his father well. I suppose Lindy is making lots of money now, but he should have visited Moscow and Berlin."

"No, I do not expect to return to the United States," he replied to a question. "I guess I will remain here until I die—I am 59 now."

Big Bill signed and took a reflective pull on his long Russian cigaret.

"Yes, I cut off my beard when I was able to get out of bed, but I nearly passed out during my sickness," he said.

Mum on Trotsky's Exile.

Haywood refused to discuss Leon Trotsky's exile, remarking, "I guess a lot of people were surprised."

He deplored the abandonment of certain phases of the communist policy, expressing the belief that they eventually will be restored and made workable.

"I hear the United States may recognize Russia after the election."

tural machinery in Chicago in the last year."

Haywood believes the United States will become communist eventually.

"Maybe not in our lifetime," he said, "but it is inevitable that when the capitalists become billionaires the middlemen some day will insist on sharing the benefits. Skilled workers are well paid in America, but the rest suffer."

Dear Sir:

Referring to report of Special Agent Lefko, Chicago, Illinois, for the eighth instant, in re: W. D. HAYWOOD - FUGITIVE, ET AL - Conspiracy to Violate the Espionage Act, it is requested that you forward immediately twenty-five copies each of Identification Orders Nos. 998 to 1005, inclusive, which I desire to use in this district.

I have called, this date, on Mr. Tuttle, of the Carnegie Steel Company, and Mr. Ruch, of the H.C. Frick Coal Company, and they each stated that they could use about six sets of each and that they would send these to their Police Officers throughout this territory, with the request that they report whether or not any recent information has been received concerning these men.

I also desire to send a sufficient number of sets to Mr. Lynn G. Adams, Superintendent of the State Police, so that he may distribute them among his officers in Western Pennsylvania, who are in very close touch with the Radical situation.

REFERENCE: Report of Agent S.E. Lefko, Chicago, 2-8-28.

DETAILS: - AT NEOSHO, MISSOURI -

Agent was informed at the Neosho Post Office that the present proprietor of the England Hotel purchased the property about February 1st, from A. Rubenstein, who managed the hotel for about a year. Agent exhibited the photograph of Subject ROTHFISHER to the Assistant Postmaster who stated that the photograph bears some resemblance to Rubenstein, but that he has never seen any one else in Neosho at the England Hotel or elsewhere, who resembled this photograph.

Agent interviewed Frank Lee, Constable of Neosho, and Foster McConnell, Deputy Sheriff, and exhibited photograph of Subject to them. These officers stated that they knew of no one in Neosho who answered the description of Subject ROTHFISHER, but that there was some resemblance between this photograph and A. Rubenstein, former manager of the England Hotel. Agent was informed that Rubenstein did not have a very good reputation in Neosho, thought he had no criminal record there.

Agent interviewed J.T. Harbert, employee in the office of the City Clerk, Neosho. Mr. Harbert stated that he was employed at the England Hotel during the summer of 1927. When shown the photograph of Subject ROTHFISHER, Mr.

Nothing developed to indicate that any of the above named persons are in the Pittsburgh District. State Police and special police forces of mining companies, etc. furnished with I.O's of subjects and requested to keep careful lookout for them. Local police department files carefully checked. No record found of any of subjects.

R. U. O.

REFERENCE: Report of Agent Lefko, Chicago, Ill. for 2-8-28.

DETAILS: Upon receipt of the above report agent called on the persons in charge of the special police forces and investigative officers of the largest steel mills and mines in this section. Extra copies of the Identification Orders were furnished their captains who were instructed to keep a careful lookout and report the presence of any of subjects in this territory. None of them had seen or heard of subject's being in the Pittsburgh District. A set of the I.O's was furnished Superintendent of State Police, Major Lynn G. Adams, whose men have been making special efforts to keep in touch with the movements of known Radicals and Communists on account of the mine strikes and he has agreed to notify this office should any trace of subjects be found. The local police made a thorough search in their identification division without finding any trace of subjects. They agreed to keep a special lookout for them and report immediately if any of subjects showed up here. In view of the fact that no information was developed that indicated that subjects are or have been in this district the matter is

Report of Special Agent S. E. Lefko, dated at Chicago, Illinois, February 8, 1928.

DETAILS:

At Duluth, Minnesota.

Agent interviewed B. B. WILCOX, Lyceum Building, Duluth, Minnesota, who is an investigator for the MINNESOTA STEEL COMPANY at Duluth. Mr. WILCOX stated to Agent that he had no recent information relative to the Subjects of this report, with the exception of WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD, who was now reported to be at Moscow, Russia. Mr. WILCOX furnished Agent with a clipping from the Duluth Herald, for January 14, 1927, which is herein quoted.

"BIG BILL" WEDS SOVIET EMPLOYEE
(By the Associated Press.)

DETAILS:

"Moscow, Jan. 14. William D. Haywood, former official of the Industrial Workers of the World, who quit the United States for Russia in 1921 to help the Soviet, has married a Russian woman, employed in one of the Soviet state institutions. The marriage took place several weeks ago, but 'Big Bill' only let his intimates into the brief courtship.

"His wife is described as a woman of 'about 37, of attractive and sympathetic personality', while Haywood is 53. She speaks no English been unable to obtain a copy of this book or to verify the fact that it had been published. Mr. SALSICH called in his chief chemist, Mr. E. T. GRIESE, whom he questioned thoroughly as to whether or not any of the men had been heard to mention these Subjects. Mr. GRIESE advised that nothing had been said recently, and that it was the opinion of all that these Subjects were no longer in this country, and had probably gone to Russia.

Mr. T. J. GODFREY, Postmaster, Hibbing, Minnesota, stated that no mail has recently been received at his office for any of these Subjects.

Agent interviewed FRANK HABEN, Assistant Chief of Police, Hibbing, Minnesota, who stated that his Department has no recent information relative to any of these parties, and that it is the opinion of the Police authorities at Hibbing that these Subjects are no longer in this country.

At Virginia, Minnesota.

MAUD M. SHERWOOD, Postal Clerk, Virginia, Minnesota, advised that no mail had been received at that office for any of the Subjects named.

ELMER CROSSLAND, Desk Sergeant, Virginia Police Department, stated that there is no recent record of any of these parties at Virginia, and that he is positive that they are not in that vicinity.

Agent interviewed J. F. BIRON, Chief Clerk, OLIVER MINING COMPANY, Virginia, who advised that Mr. FRED MOTT, General Superintendent of the OLIVER MINING COMPANY, was at present in Florida, and in his absence Mr. BIRON stated that they had received no recent information relative to these Subjects, other than the fact that Subject HAYWOOD had recently married in Russia.

At International Falls, Minnesota.

Agent made inquiry of P. J. LYNCH, Police Officer; HUGH REIDY, Sheriff, Koochiching County; H. ROYSLAND, Chief of Police; PAUL B. RAMSER, Inspector in Charge, United States Immigration Service, and C. M. BARTON, Immigration Inspector, United States Immigration Service, none of whom had any information relative to these Subjects, and stated that they all were unknown to them with the exception of Subject HAYWOOD, who has been reported as being in Russia.

Agent interviewed W. A. MARTIN, Immigration Inspector, Canadian Immigration Service; E. LUND, Customs Inspector, Canadian Customs Service; G. O. PATTERSON, Preventative Officer, Canadian Customs Service, all of whom stated that they had no information that Subjects had recently been in that vicinity. (S) U

At Northome, Minnesota.

Agent made inquiry of C. W. FIELDS, Postmaster, and A. M. URNESS, Chief of Police, both of whom stated that they had no information relative to the whereabouts of these Subjects, and that all of the Subjects are unknown to them.

and he speaks no Russian, but apparently this did not bar an understanding of each other's heart, for Haywood married her after a very brief courtship. (Duluth Herald--January 14, 1927.)"

Mr. WILCOX further furnished Agent with an article published in the American Labor Who's Who, which is edited by SOLON DE LEON, and published by HANFORD PRESS PUBLISHERS, New York City, which item is herein quoted.

"William D. Haywood.

"Former American I.W.W. leader; lecturer for Int'l. Red Aid, an organization for defense of class war prisoners, Moscow. Born 1869, Salt Lake City, Utah. Father a miner. Went to work for a short time at age of 9 in the mines; miner 1885-1901, Nevada, Utah, Idaho. Joined Western Fed. of Miners 1896; exec. bd., 1900-1; secy.-treas. 1901-7. Participated in Coeur d'Alenes, Idaho, strike, 1899; arrested during Cripple Creek, Colo., strike; after murder of Gov. Steunenberg, Idaho, arrested with Moyer and Pettibone, 1905; held in jail 15 mos., acquitted; was Socialist and Socialist Labor P. cand. for gov. of Colo. while in jail. Spoke for Moyer and Pettibone after release. Helped org. I.W.W. 1905; secy.-treas. 1916-18; arrested after speaking to Lawrence, Mass. strikers 1919; acquitted at trial; arrested in silk weavers' strike, Paterson; in jail 3 wks. refusing bail while other strikers were held in jail; sentenced to 6 mos. imprisonment for disorderly conduct; in Lowell, Mass. strike. Arrested under espionage act; released on bail 1920; escaped to Russia. Head of American Kuzbas Colony, Siberia, 1922. Was asso. ed. International Socialist Review. Author: The General Strike, 1910, and other pamphlets; co-author with F. Bohn, Industrial Socialism, 1911. Address, Hotel Lux, Moscow, U. of Soviet Socialist Republics."

Mr. WILCOX stated that he had no further information, but that he had this matter in mind, and would at once notify this Office in the event information was obtained relative to any of the other Subjects; however, that it was his opinion that none of these Subjects had ever returned to that vicinity, and further, that it would be a great surprise to him if they did, as at the time they furnished bond, a collection was taken among the Finnish miners of that vicinity, and when the bond was forfeited, many of them lost various amounts of money that they had posted as bail for these Subjects, and for this reason the feeling among the Finnish miners for all of these Subjects is none too good, and he believes that if they should return to that District, these miners will at once report the fact to the Government, in the hope that Subjects will receive some punishment.

Inquiry at the Directory Section of the Duluth Post Office developed that no mail has recently been received there for any of these Subjects.

At Hibbing, Minnesota.

Agent interviewed LE ROY SALSICH, Assistant District Manager, OLIVER MINING COMPANY, who stated that he has heard nothing of any of these Subjects except Subject HAYWOOD, who has been reported to be at Moscow, Russia; that he has also heard that HAYWOOD recently published a book in which he mentioned many of the things which occurred in the vicinity of Hibbing, Duluth, and Virginia, and mentioned many of the men who were associated with him at these places; however, that he has

J. E. Wilkie, Chief Special Agent for the Consolidated General Engineers' Association of the mining companies of the Southwest, interviewed, and stated that he is well in touch with the radicals and radical situation in the South and Northwest, and to his personal knowledge none of the subjects herein are in this section of the country and he doubts if they are in the United States.

Mr. Wilkie is of the opinion that Perry and others found refuge with subject Bill Haywood in Russia; that in the event he gains information of interest concerning any of the subjects he will promptly advise this Bureau.

Mr. Carlo is no longer connected with the mining companies in this district and the radical situation, and has left the employment of the mining companies and is no longer at Globe, Arizona.

Governor Hunt of Arizona, is now absent from the state, and due to his prejudice towards Government agents brought about by previous investigations of radical activities, it is thought inadvisable to approach him for information in the above connection.

DETAILS:

Reference is made to the report of Agent S. E. Lefko, Chicago, dated February 8, 1928.

Agent called on the Police Departments and also checked the records of the San Francisco and Oakland Police Identification Bureaus, obtaining no information of value and finding no local police records of subjects. The police are satisfied subjects are not in this district but will keep a careful lookout, taking subjects into custody if located.

Local investigative agencies doing work for lumber and manufacturing firms have no suspicion that subjects are in this district. These agencies, which are constantly on the lookout for radicals, say that agitators and radicals have been quiet for some time. At Agent's request their operatives made inquiries among informants used by them, obtaining no information regarding subjects. These Agencies will report if any information regarding subjects is obtained.

No evidence has been obtained indicating that subjects have been or are now in this district.

The Atlas Wire Products Company is located on the second floor of the above address, and from the Kansas City directories it appears that this concern has been in business for a number of years, and that A. Rubenstein has been an officer of the company for several years. The Chicago office is requested to inform the Kansas City office as to the nature of the information that Subject ROTHFISHER might be connected with the England Hotel at Keosho, Missouri, in order that an intelligent investigation may be made to determine whether Rubenstein, who formerly operated that Hotel, is identical with Subject ROTHFISHER.

Agent interviewed Captain Charles Edwards, Hughes Bryant Foundation, 1202 R. A. Long Building. Captain Edwards was formerly Chief of Police

REFERENCE: Report of Agent Lefko, Chicago Office, for date of February 8, 1928.

DETAILS:

Inquiry made in this District through the following channels, law enforcement officers, Commissioner of Labor, immigration inspectors, employment offices, confidential agents (radical) police departments, various units of organized labor, and in particular longshoremen, seamen, dock workers' union and confidential informants, does not disclose that any of these subjects are now, or have been for a number of years, in this District.

Through confidential informants Agent was advised that subject Haywood was believed to be in Russia; that for a period he was said to be connected with the Ukraine Revolution; that this was denied and that later information placed him as a commissar of some industry (thought to be fishing) at Korelia. This again was supplemented by a recent marriage of subject Haywood at Moscow, Russia. Some information was to the effect that subject Perry had died. This

Dear Sir:

Acknowledging receipt of your letter for date of March 31, 1928, relative to the above subject with request for names of under cover informants mentioned in Details in Report of Agent Marrinan dated March 14, 1928.

Beg to advise that during the past and without any instruction in the matter, certain individuals who are connected with radical organizations in an official capacity and who at times are employed as confidential informants to supply certain agencies with information from the inside of their organization, and particularly during strike periods, have been tendering information to this office with the promise on the part of Agent Marrinan that their names should not appear in any Reports nor be mentioned in the event of any prosecutions, and at this time permission is being sought from these informants to permit the Bureau to have their names and addresses in a confidential file.

[redacted] Chief of Police Jenkins, has given permission to forward his name. Other informants will be interviewed and if permission is granted their names and addresses will be forwarded under cover to the Bureau.

Your instruction as to the future regarding the obtaining of information from confidential or under cover source, to secure and transmit the names and addresses of informants to the Bureau, will be adhered to.

Examination of A. Rubenstein of the Atlas Wire Products Company, discloses that he is not Subject Charles Rothfisher.

REFERENCE:

Report of Agent S. E. Lefko, Chicago, Ill., March 29, 1928.

DETAILS:

- At Kansas City, Missouri -

Agent accompanied by a Kansas City, Missouri, Police Detective, examined and interviewed Mr. A. Rubenstein, formerly proprietor of New England Hotel, Neosho, Mo., who is now connected with the Atlas Wire Products Company, 406 East 18th Street, Kansas City, Mo., and it was ascertained that although his general features bear a slight resemblance to Subject Charles Rothfisher, and his hair and eyes are the same color, the contour of his head is considerably different, his nose is different, his age is different and he does not bear the scars on his left index finger mentioned on the I. O. for Subject Rothfisher. A. Rubenstein says that he is 54 years of age and he appears to be that age or older. His height is about 5 ft. 8 in.; weight about 225 lbs. He states that he was born in Chicago, Ill., but that he has lived in Kansas City, Mo., or the immediate vicinity for the last 29 years. He gave detailed statement of his history but same is not included in this report in view of the fact that it appears certain that he is not Subject.

BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
JUN 5 1928
DIVISION

Moscow, May 18 (AP).—William (Big Bill) Haywood, one of the founders of the Industrial Workers of the World in the United States, died in Moscow today after a lengthy illness.

Haywood figured as defendant in two trials which attracted national attention. In one he was convicted of hampering the United States government in carrying on the World War. In the other he was acquitted of murder.

Born in 1869 at Salt Lake City, Utah, he first went to work in the mines at the age of 9. He was secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners for six years and while holding that office was arrested with other officials of the union on the charge of having murdered former Governor Frank Steunenberg of Idaho on the night of December 30, 1905.

A man named Harry Orchard confessed to planting the bombs after his arrest and implicated Haywood with others as seeking to bring about the death of the former governor to give them prestige in the coming election. He was acquitted when the case was brought to trial.

He helped found the I. W. W. in 1905 and was its secretary and treasurer from 1915 to 1918. He was one of 113 arrested in Chicago on September 23, 1917, on charges of hampering the government in carrying on the war. With 22 of these defendants he was convicted on August 18, 1918, but was released in $30,000 bail pending an appeal. After the Supreme Court had refused a review of the case on April 11, 1921, it was found that Haywood had fled to Russia. His bail was forfeited.

"Big Bill" Haywood Dead in Moscow

Was One of the Founders of
I. W. W. in the United States

Moscow, May 18 (A.P.)—William "Big Bill" Haywood, one of the founders of the I. W. W. in the United States, died in Moscow today after a lengthy illness.

William D. Haywood and seventy-nine other Industrial Workers of the World, who were convicted before Federal Judge Landis at Chicago in 1918 of attempting to obstruct the Government's prosecution of the war, returned to Federal prison as a result of the refusal of the Supreme Court to review their convictions.

Haywood and fourteen others were sentenced to twenty years each and fined sums ranging from $20,000 to $35,000. They and others were sent to the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., but later were released on bail bonds aggregating $500,000 pending the outcome of their appeals.

The trials resulted from an extensive raid on the offices and homes of the I. W. W., conducted by the Department of Justice, Sept. 5, 1917. A total of 166 men were brought into court on charges of violating the selective service and espionage acts, and ninety-seven of them were convicted. Some of these served their sentences.

Haywood was hired by Soviet Russia to paint the world red.

He established headquarters in Moscow and devoted his first efforts to the revolutionary movement in Poland, Germany, Norway and Sweden.

The Lenin leaders thought Haywood was the strongest organizer in the world. They saw an example of his work in the fact that at the time of the I. W. W.

MOSCOW, May 11.—(A. P.)—William "Big Bill" Haywood, one of the founders of the I. W. W. in the United States, died in Moscow today after a long illness.

Haywood figured as a defendant in two trials which attracted national attention in America. In one he was convicted of tampering with the United States government in carrying on the world war. In the other he was acquitted of murder.

Born in Salt Lake City.

Born in 1869, at Salt Lake City, Utah, he first went to work for the mine at the age of 15. He was secretary and treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, and while holding that office was arrested with other officials of the union on the charge of having murdered former Governor Frank Stewart of Idaho, who was blown to fragments on the night of Dec. 30, 1905.

After he, with other defendants, had been held in jail for fifteen months, Haywood was finally acquitted. Haywood was one of 115 arrested in Chicago on Sept. 23, 1917, on charges of tampering with the government in carrying on the war. With ninety-two of these defendants he was convicted on Aug. 28, 1918, but was released on $10,000 bail pending an appeal.

He fled to Russia.

After the Supreme Court had refused a review of the case on April 11, 1919, Haywood could not be found.

A series of rumors which placed him in all parts of the world, it was said, had led him to Russia, where he was reported to be living.

ishing a colony in Siberia and turning it into a modern Utopia. It was his plan to establish a "soviet" within a soviet for Americans who believed in the communist idea. Accordingly the Kuzbas autonomous industrial colony was formed with Haywood as the leader.

But "Big Bill" had failed to count upon the frailties of human nature. The enterprise proved a failure because the colonists refused to become utopians. They were just plain human beings with a deep-seated desire for money and the good things of life that money will buy.

At a meeting of the colonists on January 2, 1923, Haywood resigned the leadership. He broke down and sobbed as he told of the collapse of his life's ideal.

AIDED BY SOVIET

Later the soviet government undertook to carry out Haywood's idea and contributed $1,000,000 to that end, but the colony still failed to meet the dreams of its founder.

Haywood was criticized in soviet Russia as well as in the United States for "juggling" his ball in Chicago when he came to Europe. In one dramatic speech, replying to his critics, Haywood cried:

"What could I do? Could I go to jail at my age? I would die in jail. I could not do that. I did the only thing my conscience and my intelligence dictated."

In 1923 Haywood's fortunes were very low. He was without money and without a job. His health began to fail. He was aided by the soviet government for his work in the United States in behalf of communism.

BORN IN SALT LAKE CITY

Haywood was born in Salt Lake City, the son of a poor miner, and was the founder of the Industrial Workers of the World, a socialist-labor organization embracing the principles of communism.

Twenty years ago he was involved in the assassination of Governor Steunenberg of Idaho, but was acquitted after a sensational trial when he was defended by Clarence Darrow.

BILL HAYWOOD DIES IN EXILE

Chicago Evening Post, 5/11/18.
Bill Haywood had ability, capacity for leadership, a real sympathy for those of his own class; but he took the wrong road to make them useful to his fellows. He chose the road of social warfare, of class antagonism. He countenanced violence as a means of attaining class objectives.

These things may be justified in a country where the people have no voice in the choice of governments or the making of laws; they may be justified in a country where there is no freedom of speech or of press. They are not to be justified nor tolerated in a country where the right of franchise is co-extensive with citizenship; where men and women, whatever their economic status, are on an equality of privilege and power at the polls; where the constitution guarantees freedom of utterance, and both constitution and government are created and controlled by the people.

Bill Haywood wanted all of these rights and liberties, but wanted also license to attack the institutions which embodied and preserved them. He wanted to be sheltered by law and constitution and at the same time to assail violently those who properly enjoyed a like shelter.

Haywood's philosophy was suited, perhaps, to Russia under either czar or soviet, but it was ill adapted to the United States. When Haywood was finally convinced of this he went to Russia. There he had no liberty comparable with that which he had enjoyed here. He lost the courage of his philosophy of revolt and violence in a country where revolt and violence are in control. There, where a fight for freedom would be justified, he submitted to tyranny. He died in exile, a lonely and disillusioned man. Chicago Evening Post, 5/11/18.

BURY HAYWOOD ASHES HERE AND ALSO IN MOSCOW

Chicago Evening Post
Former Chicago W. W.
Leader's Body to
Be Cremated. 5/19/28

MOSCOW, May 19.—(AP)—The body of William D. (Big Bill) Haywood will be cremated tonight to carry out the terms of his will by which half of his ashes are to be sent to Chicago. He directed that they were to be buried near the graves of the radicals who were executed for participation in the Haymarket riot of 1886. The other half will be buried in Moscow with the remains of the Hungarian communist Landler. The urn will remain in Moscow until the convening of the communist international congress.

The comparative inactivity for the last five years of the former fiery secretary of the Industrial Workers of the World resulted in little stir in communist circles when news of his death became public. Haywood and his wife had been living quietly and unostentatiously and both held minor posts with the government. He was understood to be writing his autobiography.

Haywood died peacefully after a hearty meal, dropping into a deep slumber from which he did not awaken. His Russian wife, whom he married in 1927, some years after the death of his first wife in America, was watching at his bedside and burst into tears at his passing.

The body was taken to the club of political refugees where it lay in state surrounded by a guard of honor composed of Russian and foreign communists.

BILL HAYWOOD AND THE I. W. W.

William D. Haywood, founder and for years the leader and principal orator of the syndicalist and revolutionary organization called the Industrial Workers of the World, may or may not have been disillusioned in soviet Russia, where his ideas of government and economics are despised. At any rate his death in Russia ended a strange and stormy career, and it is to be hoped that he left notes or memoranda recording his impressions of bolshevism as he saw it in operation.

Haywood jumped his bail in Chicago in 1921 and fled to Russia when the United States Supreme court, affirming the verdict of a jury and the trial court, ordered his return to a federal prison to serve out a ten-year sentence for obstructing the government's war activities. Had he returned to prison, it is probable that his sentence would have been reduced by the president, as were the sentences of other syndicalists and communists convicted of similar offenses. But the Russian experiment interested Haywood, and he did not hesitate to jump his bail and thus embarrass personal friends who had signed his bail bond.

Borrowing many ideas from French and Italian syndicalists, Haywood organized the I. W. W. in the United States at a time when the trade union and the constitutional socialist movements failed to recognize the needs of the homeless and migratory workers of the agricultural northwest. Most of his followers knew little of the doctrines and philosophy of syndicalism, but they understood the crude gospel of class war, hate, strikes and sabotage as preached by Haywood.

During the world war the I. W. W. became a menace to the government. Several states passed severe antisindicalist laws. Other states would have followed that example had not the armistice, the trial and conviction of Haywood and his colleagues and the suspension of syndicalist journals practically removed the danger of widespread sabotage and strikes conceived in a spirit of irreconcilable antagonism to the existing social order.

Haywood did not teach syndicalism in soviet Russia. In that Marrian utopia one must be rigidly orthodox in his socialism. In the United States Haywood for years enjoyed freedom of speech and publication, and probably would have continued to enjoy it had he not undertaken voluntarily to oppose the government's war preparations at a critical juncture.

Haywood Once King of I. W. W. Dies in Russia

MOSCOW, May 31.—(U. P.)—William D. "Big Bill" Haywood, former labor leader and King of the I. W. W. in the United States, died in an hospital here today at his 66th year. Haywood's condition had been critical for several weeks after a long fight against diabetes. The disease was arrested more than a month ago but the communist's heart was too weak to survive the treatment.

Haywood had been a fugitive from American justice since 1911 when he came to Russia to escape serving a 30 year prison sentence for obstructing the war. The sentence was imposed on "Big Bill" by Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis in Chicago in 1911.

Haywood never succeeded in making the name for himself here that he had enjoyed in America. The former pain of "Big Bill" would not have recognized the labor agitator in Moscow, for as the years passed he grew fat. He lived in two rooms given him by the Soviet government in a Moscow hotel. At first he held Soviet executive positions, but during the last four years he had no important work.

LIFE OF VIOLENCE

Haywood and all factions that will get the results. The factions are determined solely by the power of the organization to make good in their view. The question of right and wrong does not concern us.

This was the code of William D. "Big Bill" Haywood—the labor mag whose method of crusading in this field brought down the denunciation of organized labor. The socialist whose conception of socialism betrayed him from the ranks and finally the exile to Red Russia.

Born in Utah.

William D. Haywood was born at Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1861. He came of a family of miners and worked in a mine when only nine years old. At 11 his step-father "bought him out" to a farmer, but the boy Bill ran away at the end of four years and went to work for the Ohio Mining company of Nevada.

Haywood was in Silver City, Idaho, when the Western Federation of Miners was started, and soon took a leading part. He was chairman of the executive board when the Coeur d'Alene troubles broke out in 1899. At that time Frank Steunenberg was governor of Idaho. In the Coeur d'Alene troubles he and Haywood crossed trails and collided.

Governor Steunenberg.

Haywood's early vigorous tactics came to a sudden halt when on the night of Dec. 30, 1906, former Gov. Frank Steunenberg of Idaho was blown to pieces by a bomb as he entered the yard of his house in Caldwell, Idaho. The murderer was discovered two days later. He was Harry Orchard, and his confession implicated Big Bill, Charles E. Moyer, Pat Kehone, a Denver stockbroker, and other Western Federation officers. At Minneapolis, Orchard accused these men of conspiring to commit no fewer than twenty-six murders.

Haywood, Moyer, and Pat Kehone were arrested in Denver on Feb. 17, 1908, and taken to Idaho. Haywood was brought to trial at Boise on May 8, 1909. Clarence S. Darrow, Chicago attorney, was leading counsel for the defense, and a young man who was coming along at that time, William E. Borah, the senator from Idaho, was the counsel for the prosecution.

The case went to the jury on July 27, and Haywood was acquitted because, observers said, the Idaho plaintiff and farmers who sat in judgment simply found it beyond their powers to believe that one man could have plotted such a series of bandish crimes as were charged against him.

Helps to Organize I. W. W.

About this time Haywood was dropped from the pay roll of the Western Federation of Miners. Meanwhile, he had begun to take a leading part in the formation of the I. W. W. Then, in 1911, the Denver group of socialists passed resolutions demanding the expulsion of Haywood from the party, resulting in his formal expulsion in March, 1912.

With the dawn of America's entry into the world war Haywood's work took on a renewed viciousness. As a result of his activities in the early part of the war Big Bill was sentenced by Judge Kenesaw M. Landis to serve ten years in the federal penitentiary and pay a fine of $10,000. He was released on Feb. 14, 1913, on a bond of $15,000. On April 11, 1921, the Supreme court ordered Haywood and eighty other members of the I. W. W. to return to the federal prison. Haywood jumped his $15,000 bond and fled to Russia.

FIGHTS LIFE'S LAST BATTLE LONELY, BROKENHEARTED

Hopeless Hunt for Utopia Ends; Russian Bride at Side Sobs Tragic Farewell in Tongue He Can't Speak

William D. ("Big Bill") Haywood, founder of the Industrial Workers of the World, died in Moscow, Russia, yesterday—a homesick old man, fugitive from justice, heartbroken by the collapse of his ideals, lonely as only a man can be lonely in a foreign land, where even his wife, bending above his bed, had to say farewell in a language of which the dying man knew no word.

Haywood's progress for the workers, during the last of his life, was that they should take possession of the earth. To the workers, the earth was the only possession of his body.

Chicago's most vivid memory of this man was a soft, old Don Quixote of the red movement, too radical even for the radicals in his own country, probably to be of a war-time scene in the city of Chicago.

Judge Kane saw Bill Haywood, who had been sentenced to twenty years for obstruction of justice, and he sentenced that penalty by pumping his $10,000 bail bond and fleeing to Russia. The first had been the second great disappointment of his life. The first had been his failure to find a "Utopia" in America. The second was the discovery that a "Utopia" built of his own order in Russia and peopled with men and women of his own choice could not be made to work.

His bride, a Russian girl, who had nursed him through all the months of his illness, was with him as he died. She spoke to him in Russian and he spoke to her in English, and each could only guess what the other had said. Haywood was born in a poor city in 1859. His father, a poor miner, died while he was still a child, and his mother married another man.

His first big opportunity to assume leadership was in 1891, when the Western Federation of Miners was organized. He took a conspicuous part in the organizing, and was chairman of its executive board when the Court of Appeals affirmed his conviction. He was then in prison, and he became their mouthpiece.

Between these two classes a struggle must go on until the workers of the world organize as a class, take possession of the earth and the machinery of production, and abolish the wage system.

W. W. BORN. He came to Chicago. At a conference in which he sat with Eugene V. Debs and other radicals, the L. W. W. was born. Haywood said he had written the preamble, which said: "The working class and the employing class have nothing in common. There can be no peace so long as hunger and want are found among millions of working people and the few who make up the employing class have all the good things of life."

Callegary describing his death yesterday ascribes it to a number of causes. The immediate cause was a reported collapse fit. But for a long time he had been suffering from diabetes, inadequately controlled by insulin, and from a cardiac weakness.

BRIEF WITH HIM TO END.

The wife, a Russian girl, who had shared him through all the months of his flight, was with him at the end. She spoke to him in Russian.

Accepted by the jury. But to a sense the trial was not over. For the controversy became hot and nationalistic. It was a debate, rather of emotion than of thought. It was held against him. Theodore Roosevelt, then President of the United States, was talking about Haywood and his associates when he coined his famous phrase, "unredeemable sinners." And as Haywood's power grew.

L. W. W. BORN. He came to Chicago. At a conference in which he met with Eugene V. Debs and other radicals, the L. W. W. was born. Haywood is said to have written the amazing preamble, which said:

"The working class and the employing class have nothing to common. There can be no peace so long as hunger and want are found among millions of working people and the few who make up the employing class have all the good things of life."

Between these two classes a struggle must go on until the workers of the world organize as a class, take possession of the earth and the machinery of production, and abolish the wage system."

SPLIT SOCIALIST PARTY.

The thing was not much even for the majority of the radicals. It split the Socialist party. Haywood was expelled from that party in 1911. But he took the L. W. W. with him and made it an instrument of terror.

For a time it was more feared than even the Ku Klux Klan was feared. But the very fear that it inspired produced eventually the crushing power of public wrath which struck it down.

In the years just preceding the world war Haywood, a sinister figure, often sought by the police, often kept in hiding by his followers, moved from center to center of the industrial conflict, harping violence.

Inspiring violence? He always denied it. But the truth is that a man may inspire violence while actually

Every household copy of the May Day edition of THE DAILY WORKER was passed by the workers of Philadelphia for its tributes to Labor's International.

There are many reasons why the DAILY WORKER-Solider Club needs the support of labor, of great, strong, out-there labor, of all kinds, of all ages, of all races and all places while the workers of Philadelphia are completely unrepresented.

The May Day distribution was very well attended by the DAILY WORKER-Solider Club members.

W. D. HAYWOOD IS DYING IN MOSCOW

Lead Militant Labor in U.S. for Many Years

MOSCOW, May 10.—William D. Haywood, founder of the Industrial Workers of the World, is dangerously ill in the Kremlin Hospital after a paralytic stroke last night. He is reported to be sinking rapidly. Haywood, at present a member of the Russian Communist Party, was for many years an outstanding leader in many strikes of great importance in various parts of the United States. Haywood was the leader of the great Lawrence textile strike of 1913. He was in the forefront of many industrial battles, and during the entire period of his activity in the United States, was either in prison or under indictment. In 1907 Haywood, together with Meyer and Pettibone, narrowly escaped execution in a murder frame-up in Idaho. Sen. Wm. E. Borah called in as special state prosecutor, was defeated in his attempt to railroad them to the gallows. Haywood came to the Soviet Union in 1921, leaving the United States after having been convicted under the war-time Espionage Act. During the past eight years he has held numerous responsible posts in the U. S. A. R. 11.

Acknowledging receipt of your letter for date of May 7, 1928, relative the above subject, I beg to advise that on April 3, 1928, this office forwarded reply to your letter of March 21, 1928, regarding this subject.

Since that time Agent Marrinan has approached another informant employed as an assistant engineer on one of the boats plying to the orient from here, and this informant reminded Agent Marrinan that he had a promise that his name should not appear in the records of this Bureau. This informant is somewhat anxious in this matter fearing expose that might result in injury to himself.

Another informant is out of the city, and upon his return a request will be made and if permission is granted his name and address will be forwarded to the Bureau.

Very truly yours,

THOUSANDS AT BIER OF WILLIAM HAYWOOD

Daily Worker, May 21, 1928
MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., May 20.—A glowing tribute was paid by the international revolutionary movement at the bier of William D. Haywood when leader after leader in the first workers' and peasants' republic lauded his fighting record in the American labor movement.

Among the speakers were George Hardy, for the Red International of Trade Unions, Tzichon for the Central and Moscow committees of the All Union Communist Party, Sen Katayama for the Japanese Communist Party and the revolutionary workers of the Far East, R. Page Arnot for the Communist Party of Great Britain and the Anglo-American secretariat of the Comintern. William F. Dunne spoke for the American Communist Party, while J. Louis Engdahl, as the American representative to the Comintern, presided.

Thousands View Body.

Thousands of workers crowded the Political Emigrants' Club where Haywood's body, surrounded by emblems of the revolutionary movement is lying in state. The long lines passed slowly by the bier.

At the crematorium, a Negro representative and a representative of the International Class War Prisoners' Aid, together with J. Louis Engdahl and Nicholas Hourwich, as representative of the Russian emigrants from the American Communist movement also spoke.

Haywood's ashes are being kept for the final ceremonies at the time of the world congress, when there will be a joint funeral for Haywood and Landler, secretary of the Hungarian

Rap Union Heads' Appeal to Governor

KENOSHA, Wis., May 20.—After an attack by armed thugs on striking knitters of the Allen-A Hosiery Co., in which the strikers, altho shot at, ably defended themselves. Louis F. Budenz, special organizer for the American Federation of Full Fashioned Hosiery Workers, is reported to be in Milwaukee seeking an audience with Governor Zimmerman, to request that the state take charge of the strike situation.

This request from the capitalist officialdom of the state governmental machinery was made by Budenz, reports declare, on the grounds that the strike situation has gotten beyond the control of the Kenosha authorities.

While it is true that the Kenosha city administration is of the blackest labor-hating hue, being completely under the control of the open-shop Nash Motor Co., an appeal to the capitalist state officials can result in nothing else than the bringing in of larger and more efficient strikebreaking machinery. All the governor can do, the militant strikers declare, is to order in the notorious, anti-labor militia.

The bitter strike against the mill owners' lock-out has been going on for many months with the strikers ranks as solid today as when the strike was first declared.

SEND CONDOLENCE FOR W.D. HAYWOOD

In appreciation of the pioneer work accomplished by William D. Haywood for the American working class, the Central Executive Committee of the German Communist Party has sent the following message of condolence to the Workers (Communist) Party.

"The Communist Party of Germany mourns with the Workers Party and the Whole American labor movement at the bier of Comrade Haywood. The Workers (Communist) Party alone represents and is today developing the work of this pioneer in the revolutionary American labor movement in its struggle against the bourgeoisie and reformism."

INT'L RED AID LAUDS HAYWOOD

Urges Workers to Join Labor Defense

International Labor Defense has received cables from the Executive Committee, International Red Aid, and from the I. L. D. Mopr of the Union of the Socialist Soviet Republics, expressing their sorrow at the death of Comrade William D. Haywood. Haywood was a prominent supporter of International Labor Defense in the United States and one of its founders.

The cable from the International Red Aid, (Mopr organization) for the defense of persecuted workers and peasants throughout the world, is as follows:

"The Executive Committee of the International Red Aid mourns, together with you, at the death of Comrade William Haywood, one of the most active workers of the International Red Aid, who had dedicated his life to the work of freeing the workingclass from the yoke of capitalism million toilers, members of the Mopr, shares together with you and with the whole workingclass the grief for the great and painful loss of the eldest revolutionary, the active fighter of the American workers' movement, Comrade William Haywood. Before the ashes of Comrade Haywood, the Central Committee of the Mopr declares its readiness to continue in the future its work of relief to and care for the political prisoners, the victims of bourgeois terror who fight for the cause of the international proletariat."

International Labor Defense will soon publish a pamphlet it received from Wm. D. Haywood, just prior to his death. A letter from Wm. D. Haywood, probably the last of his to the comrades in the United States, sent to James P. Cannon, executive secretary of International Labor Defense, is published in the June issue of the Labor Defender.

NEGROES OBSERVE HAYWOOD'S DEATH

Memorial Planned Here For June 1

Many Negro workers are planning to attend the huge memorial meeting at the Central Opera House, 67th St. and Third Ave., Friday night, June 1, in honor of William D. Haywood, communist and pioneer enemy of Jim Crow tactics in the labor movement.

When Haywood first started to organize American workers, even many W. W. representatives segregated Negro workers from the whites in the South, comrades who were closely associated with Haywood recall.

One such case was the huge lumber strike in St. Charles, La. "Big Bill" came to address the workers and found they had assembled in two halls, one right above the other, the blacks in one and the whites in the other.

"What's this for? Put 'em together," hundered "Big Bill."

"But it's never been done in the South," gasped the local organizers.

"Then it's time it was," said Haywood, and he did not speak until all the workers, whom he called "comrades," were seated together before him. From that time on Negro workers by the thousands rallied to Haywood's call.

Haywood's friendship with Negro workers dated back to his youth when he slaved in the mines of Nevada, Utah and Idaho, swinging his pickaxe side by side with Negro miners. One of his regrets about being exiled from the United States was that he could not help organize the Negro workers along with the whites.

The memorial meeting is being held under the auspices of the New York District of the Workers (Communist) Party. Haywood, who died recently in Moscow, will be buried at the wall of the Kremlin.

The district committee of the Young Workers (Communist) League has decided to call off the League anniversary mass meeting, June 1, in order to make it possible for all workers to attend the Haywood memorial.

URGE WORKERS TO HONOR HAYWOOD

Meet a Demonstration for Class Struggle

Calling on the militant workers of New York to make the Haywood Memorial Meeting on Friday a demonstration for the class struggle, William W. Weinstone, organizer of District 2 of the Workers (Communist) Party, yesterday issued the following statement:

"Dear Comrades:

Friday, June 1, 8 P. M. at the Central Opera House, the workers of New York will honor the memory of the militant champion of American workers—William D. Haywood.

The New York workers will honor the services of that great leader of the American revolutionary movement who was a pioneer in the establishment of the trade union movement and who helped in the economic and political development of the working class of this country.

Haywood stands out as a towering figure in American labor history. The battles in which he has been engaged have been milestones in the development of the toilers. He has been persecuted. He has been imprisoned. He has been hounded by the capitalist class because they saw in him a force for the organization of the workers, for instilling the workers with class consciousness and determination for the overthrow of the capitalist system.

Though Haywood has been the founder of the Industrial Workers of the World which has given to the American labor movement fine traditions of class determination and struggle, he went over from this organization that he founded into the ranks of the Communist Party because he recognized in the Communist Party the real leader of the working class for the emancipation of the proletariat and thus carried over into the Communist Party the best traditions of the syndicalist movement of this country.

It is the duty of every communist, of every revolutionary worker to be present at the meeting to commemorate the services and battles of William D. Haywood for working class emancipation, to honor the memory of a fighter, a revolutionist, a communist. Let this Memorial Meeting be a demonstration for the class struggle, for more determined, for more energetic, for more revolutionary struggle against the class enemy and for the organization of the workers for the overthrow of capitalism.

UNDER WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD, FOUNDER OF THE I. W. W., DIES IN EXILE AFTER LONG LIFE OF STRUGGLE

Industrial Solidarity Chicago, Ill. May 20, 1928

William D. Haywood, who died in Moscow on May 18th from a complication of diseases rising from diabetes, was one of the original signers of the manifesto that called the Industrial Workers of the World into existence, and he was chairman of its first convention held in Chicago in 1905.

He was born in Salt Lake City in 1869 and was early identified with the labor movement by his connection with the Western Federation of Miners. When Governor Steunenburg of Idaho, was assassinated, the capitalists of that state sought to fasten guilt upon Haywood, in connection with Moyer and Pettibone. Haywood was kidnaped from the Denver office of the W. F. of M., of which he was secretary-treasurer and taken to Idaho, a proceeding utterly illegal. Clarence Darrow defended the case and the verdict acquitted all three defendants.

In Many Class Battles

Haywood, however, is known best in connection with the I. W. W. and this association was his life work. A forceful, convincing speaker, he was always able to rally large audiences, and he was known everywhere as a foremost exponent of no compromise with the capitalist class. He was in the center of many industrial battles, and even his worst enemies had to admit that he was highly courageous.

Indicted with over a hundred members of the I. W. W. in the war time raids, Haywood was sentenced in Chicago to 20 years in the penitentiary at Leavenworth. Kene-saw Mountain Landis presided at the trial, and became notorious for his savage sentences. The deeds of such judges caused G. Bernard Shaw to write that American judges had gone "stark, raving mad."

Makes Great Mistake

Haywood was released on bond after having served for some time in Leavenworth, and in 1921 he fled to Russia, forfeiting bail. This proved to be the great mistake of his life, as his exile separated him from an environment where he was useful to the working class. In Russia is economic training unfitted him for propaganda work under the Bolsheviks, and most of his years in that country were spent inactively, except for memoirs that he finished not long before his death, called "Against the Current."

The body of "Big Bill", much emaciated by his long illness, was cremated, and according to reported terms of his will, half of the ashes are to be sent to America to be interred in Waldheim Cemetery, Chicago, beside the remains of the Haymarket Martyrs.

It is interesting that at this time publicity is being given to one who still survives Haywood, and who collaborated with him in writing the pamphlet, "Industrial Socialism." We refer to Frank Bohn, who is now employed as propagandist for the power lobby. Bohn just completed a pamphlet called "The Boulder Canyon Dam," and is an attack favoring the power trust.

that about every fifth man is unemployed. Looking for a job and cannot find it; willing to work but is denied the opportunity of doing so; eager to produce the things necessary to sustain life, but each time that he applies for a job he is told there is no work for a tramp. No other form of slavery denied the slave class the right to work and produce the food, clothing and shelter necessary to life. That condition of economic relations is peculiar to our age, the age of industrial capitalism, of capitalist imperialism.

Mad Rush For A Job

The iron heel is crushing the workers everywhere. They are tramping each other under foot in a vain effort to be the man hired wherever an extra man is needed by the boss. In Butte, the other day, it was rumored that a man was wanted at a certain mine. Five thousand men showed up to get the job. The "guy" in charge of the office came to the door and announced that one man would be hired, but that the superintendent would do the hiring at another building. The men all started in a mad rush to get the job. After the mob had passed, and the dust had blown away, a man was found dead, crushed beneath the feet of five thousand jobless men all trying to be first, and therefore the one hired. The result was one man hired and one killed, while four thousand nine hundred and ninety-eight men went away disappointed and discouraged.

And Henry Ford told the snobs of England that there were no unemployed in America. Every man who desires to work is working, so he told them. And then again, the candidates for president on both party tickets tell us that the major issue before the people is prohibition. Then there is the Workers (Communist) Party with their solution. The fact that the workers are robbed of the major portion of the wealth that they produce. This robbery takes place in industry, and in the society of Britain's Roy Snobs, nor in halls of Congress. The solution is necessarily economic. The workers must organize according to industry, and on the basis of the cause of all of their woes. They must organize where the trouble is, and for the purpose of removing the cause. That is the sound program of the I. W. W. Its very simplicity seems to make it hard to understand. The workers, most of whom are mentally lazy, are looking for some very complicated and difficult solution to the labor problems. Reduced to a few simple words, the solution is—"Organize industrially plus Solidarity of labor in the struggles with the capitalists" and you will win. All hell can't stop you. Since you must some time adopt this program, why not now? We workers must solve our own problems. No one else is going to do it for us. Let's get to work about it.

Industrial Union No. 110 is going to enter the harvest fields this year as usual, but with increased enthusiasm. They will offer you this program. Your first $3.50 should go for a card in the Union. That is cheap enough. Then get busy and assist the officers of the organization. They are but carrying into effect the policies of the Union. Cooperation is what is needed. Our delegates (officers) will be found reasonable but very firm. They will be acting under instructions given to them by the convention. The lumberjacks will be in the fields. They will help to put over the big membership drive for 110. Then we will all invade the tall timber. We will do battle with the most powerful corporation on the Pacific Coast. We did this before. We can do it again. Just a little team work. That is all that is needed.—F. E.

William D. Haywood --- Soldier to the Last

By JAMES P. CANNON.

The death of Haywood was not unexpected. The declining health of the old fighter was known to his friends for a long time. On each visit to Moscow in recent years which our Party work necessitated we noted the progressive weakening of his physical powers and learned of the repeated attacks of the fatal disease which finally brought him down. Our anxious inquiries during the past month, occasioned by the newspaper reports of his illness, only brought the response that his recovery this time could not be expected. Nevertheless we could not abandon the hope that his fighting spirit and his will to live would pull him through again and the news that death had triumphed in the unequal struggle brought a shock of grief.

A Soldier to the Last.

The death of Haywood is a double blow to those who were at once his comrades in the fight and his personal friends, for his character was such as to invest personal relations with an extraordinary dignity and importance. His great significance for the American and world labor movement was also fully appreciated, I think, both by our Party and by the Communist International, in the ranks of which he ended his career, a soldier to the last.

An outstanding personality and leader of the pre-war revolutionary labor movement in America and also a member and leader of the modern Communist movement which grew up on its foundation, Bill Haywood represented a connecting link which helped to establish continuity between the old movement and the new. Growing out of the soil of America, or better, hewn out of its rocks, he first entered the labor movement as a pioneer unionist of the formative days of the Western Federation of Miners thirty years ago. From that starting point he bent his course toward the conscious class struggle and marched consistently on that path to the end of his life. He died a Communist and a soldier of the Communist International.

Wrote Memoirs.

It is a great fortune for our Party that he finished his memoirs and that they are soon to be published. They constitute a record of the class struggle and of the labor movement in America of priceless value for the present generation of labor militants. The career of Haywood is bound up with the stormy events which have marked the course of working class development in America for thirty years and out of which the basic nucleus of the modern movement has come.

He grew up in the hardship and struggle of the mining camps of the west. Gifted with the careless physical courage of a giant and an eloquence of speech, Bill soon became a recognized leader of the metal miners and developed with them through epic struggles toward a militancy of action combined with a socialistic understanding, even in that early day, which soon placed the Western Federation of Miners, which Haywood said "was born in a Bull Pen," in the vanguard of the American labor movement.

It was the merger of these industrial proletarian militants of the west with the socialist political elements represented by Debs and De Leon which brought about the formation of the I. W. W. in 1905. The fame and outstanding prominence of Haywood as a labor leader even in that day is illustrated by the fact that he was chosen chairman of the historic first convention of the I. W. W. in 1905.

First Convention of I. W. W. The brief, simple speech he delivered there, as recorded in the stenographic minutes of the convention, stands out in many respects as a charter of labor of that day. His plea for the principle of the class struggle, for industrial unionism, for special emphasis on the unskilled workers, for solidarity of black and white workers and for a revolutionary goal of the labor struggle anticipated many established principles of the modern revolutionary labor movement.

The attempt to railroad him to the gallows on framed-up murder charges in 1906 was thwarted by the colossal protest movement of the workers who saw in this frame-up against him a tribute to his talent and power as a labor leader and to his incorruptibility. His name became a battle cry of the socialist and labor movement and he emerged from the trial a national and international figure.

He rose magnificently to the new demands placed upon him by this position and soon became recognized far and wide as the authentic voice of the proletarian militants of America. The schemes of the reformist leaders of the socialist party to use his great name and popularity as a shield for them were frustrated by the bold and resolute course he pursued. Through the maze of intrigue and machinations of the reformist impostors in the socialist party, he shouldered his way with the doctrine of class struggle and the tactics of militant action.

Headed Left Wing.

The proletarian and revolutionary elements gathered around him and formed the powerful "left wing" of the Party which made its bid for power in the convention of 1912. The "Reds" were defeated there and the party took a decisive step along the pathway which has led to its present position of reformist bankruptcy and open betrayal. The subsequent expulsion of Haywood from the National Executive Committee was at once a proof of the opportunist degeneration of the party and of his own revolutionary integrity.

Haywood's syndicalism was the outcome of his reaction against the reformist policies and parliamentary cretinism of the middle class leaders of the socialist party—Hillquit, Berger, and Co. But syndicalism, which in its final analysis, is "the twin brother of reformism," as Lenin has characterized it, was only a transient theory in Haywood's career. He passed beyond it and thus escaped that degeneration and sterility which overtook the syndicalist movement throughout the world during and after the war. The World War and the Russian Revolution did not pass by Haywood unnoticed, as they passed by many leaders of the I. W. W. who had encased themselves in a shell of dogma to shut out the realities of life.

Becomes a Communist.

These world-shaking events combined with the bounding and dragon-like of the I. W. W. by the United States government—the "Political State" which syndicalism wanted to "ignore"—wrought a profound change in the outlook of Bill Haywood. He emerged from Leavenworth Penitentiary in 1919 in a receptive and studious mood. He was already fifty years old but he conquered the mental rigidity which afflicts so many at that age. He began, slowly and painfully to assimilate the new and universal lessons of the war and the Russian Revolution. First taking his stand with that group in the I. W. W. which favored adherence to the Red International of Labor Unions, he gradually developed his thought further and finally came to the point where he proclaimed himself a Communist and a disciple of Lenin. He became a member of the Communist Party of America before his departure for Russia. There he was transferred to the Russian Communist Party and in recognition of his lifetime of revolutionary work, he was given the status of "an old party member"—the highest honor anyone can enjoy in the land of Workers' Triumph.

As everyone knows, Haywood in his time had been a prisoner in many jails and, like all men who have smelted iron, he was keenly sensitive to the interests of revolutionaries who suffer for this crucifixion. He attached the utmost importance to the work of labor defense and was one of the founders of the I. L. D. He contributed many ideas to its formation and remained an enthusiastic supporter right up to his death. What is very probably his last message to the workers of America, written just before he was stricken the last time, is contained in a letter which is being published in the June number of the Labor Defender now on the press.

As a leader of the workers in open struggle Haywood was a fighter the like of which is all too seldom seen. He loved the laboring masses and was remarkably free from all prejudices of craft or race or nationality. In battle with the class enemies of the workers he was a raging lion, relentless and irreconcilable.

His field was the open fight and in mass strikes his powers unfolded and multiplied themselves. Endowed with a giant's physique and an absolute disregard of personal hazards, he pulled the striking workers to him as to a magnet and imparted to them his own courage and spirit.

Akron Strike.

I remember especially his arrival at Akron during the great rubber workers' strike of 1913 when ten thousand strikers met him at the station and marched behind him to the Hall. His speech that morning has always stood out in my mind as a model of working class oratory. With his commanding presence and his great mellow voice he held the vast crowd in his power from the moment that he rose to speak. He had that gift, all too rare, of using only the necessary words and of compressing his thoughts into short, epigrammatic sentences. He clarified his points with homely illustrations and pungent witticisms which rocked the audience with understanding laughter. He poured out sarcasm, ridicule and denunciation upon the employers and their pretensions and made the workers feel with him that they, the workers, were the important and necessary people. He closed, as he always did, on a note of hope and struggle with a picture of the final victory of the workers. Every word from beginning to end, simple, clear and effective. That is Haywood, the proletarian orator as I remember him.

There was another side to Bill Haywood which was an essential side of his character revealed to those who knew him well as personal friends. He had a warmth of personality that drew men to him like a bonfire on a winter's day. His considerateness and indulgence toward his friends and his generous impulsiveness in human relations were just as much a part of Bill Haywood as his iron will and intransigence in battle.

"Bill's Room" in the Lux Hotel at Moscow was always the central gathering place for the English speaking delegates. Bill was "good company" in the best sense of that old-fashioned term. He liked to have people around him and visitors came to his room in a steady stream; many went to pour out their troubles, certain of a sympathetic hearing and a word of wise advice.

Fear'd by Ruling Class.

The American ruling class hounded Haywood with the most vindictive hatred. They could not tolerate the idea that he, an American of old revolutionary stock, a talented organizer and eloquent speaker, should be on the side of the exploited masses, a champion of the doubly persecuted foreigners and Negroes.

With a twenty year prison sentence hanging over him he was compelled to leave America in the closing years of his life and to seek refuge in Workers' Russia. He died there in the Kremlin, the capital of his and our Socialist Fatherland with the red flag of his class floating triumphantly overhead.

Capitalist America made him an outlaw and he died expatriated from his native land. But in the ranks of the militant workers of America, who owe so much to his example, he remains a citizen of the first rank. He represented in his rugged personality all that was best of the pre-war socialist and labor movement, and by his adhesion to Communism he helped to transmit that inheritance to us. His memory will remain a blazing torch of inspiration for the workers of America in the great struggles which lie before them.

His life was a credit and an honor to our class and to our movement. Those who pick up the battle-flag which has fallen from his lifeless hands will do well to emulate the bigness and vision, the courage and the devotion which were characteristics of our beloved comrade and friend, Bill Haywood.

program will come boys over 14 and under 18 years in the following events: Eight pound shot-put, running broad jump and a 25-yard dash. A 100-yard club relay will also be held in this class.

Simultaneously with the running of the events in the above-mentioned class, events for girls and women will be run off consisting of a 60-yard dash, running broad jump and a volley ball throw.

The big boys from 18 up will furnish the major part of the afternoon's program. In this class, the spectators will be entertained with performances of a championship calibre. The events are as follows: Twelve pound shot-put, running broad and running high jump, discus throw, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash and a 230-yard club relay.

Settle Ancient Feud.

A friendly feud that has lasted for several years between the Yemans' baseball team and the team of the Finnish-Young Workers will be settled temporarily when these two teams clash as the final event of the program.

Starting at three o'clock and continuing until six in the afternoon, dancing will be held to the tunes of the Finnish Orchestra in the spacious pavilion.

Every worker in Detroit is invited to attend this meet. The only means of getting to the camp is by auto. Drive out Grand River through Redford, Farmington and Novi. Three miles past Novi turn right on Whom Road. Drive out Wixom Road eight miles to Loon Lake and the camp. I. S. U. signs will point the way from Farmington to camp. Total distance, 36 miles.

WORKERS DEMAND FREEDOM FOR KUN

Thousands Protest in Union Square

(A lowering sky and intermittent drizzling rain failed to dampen the ardor of 5,000 New York workers, who gathered in Union Square Saturday afternoon and shouted a lusty "Aye" to a resolution demanding the immediate and unconditional release of Bela Kun, Hungarian Communist leader, now held prisoner by the Austrian government.

Speaker after speaker, addressing the workers from two platforms, pointed out to the steadily increasing crowd the significance of the arrest of Kun, the possibility of his extradition to Hungary, where his murder is work 10 hours a day, but were to receive extra pay for overtime.

The extra pay never came. Congress discovered that only enough had been appropriated to pay for the regular wages and the navy yard workers were told to wait until the next congress when they would surely be paid all that was due them. These promises continued for six years and for six years congress continued to fool the workers until the matter was dropped entirely.

The graft and corruption that filled the last quarter of the 19th century, the period of the rise to world-power of American capitalism, at times reached such a point that even capitalist politicians were compelled to hold their noses and appeal with righteous indignation to "public opinion." But there was not a cent for the workers in the government navy yards, whose back overtime wages mounted in the course of years to millions of dollars.

Most of the navy yard workers are now in their graves. Some died in the poor house and a few are still charity institutions. The widows and children of many of them are still living in the wretched little shacks around the Brooklyn navy yard where they have spent most of their lives. These creditors of the United States of America have for almost half a century been trying to collect. For almost half a century they have lived in poverty and want while millions in graft, both "legitimate" and "illegitimate," have been squandered by their capitalist creditor.

After many years the widows and children of the old navy yard workers have succeeded in having a bill introduced into congress appropriating $324,000 for the payment of their claims. This is only a small part of the money due them. Congress, which exploited their husbands and fathers, stole their wages from them and ground them down to the depths of poverty, can now afford to toss them this coin.

The bill has already been passed by the senate and is now before the house, where it may encounter new obstacles. Should it be approved by the house too, endless red tape will probably reach out to entangle the lives of these last claimants. And maybe at the end there will still be a few who will live to get their small share of the money kept from them when they needed it most by a government that dispenses justice equally to the rich and the poor.

Detroit League Dance.

A banquet and dance to celebrate the sixth anniversary of the organization of the Young Workers (Communist) League will be held on Saturday, at 8 p. m. at the Labor Temple, 3179 DeMar Avenue.

Gordon to Read at "Red Poets"

Prominent Writers on Annual Program

David Gordon, 19 year-old member of the Young Workers League, who has just been released from the New York County reformatory, will read from his prison poems at the second annual international Red Poets Night. The affair, which will be held Thursday evening at 8 p. m., at Labor Temple, Second Ave., and 14th St., will bring together revolutionary poets writing in various languages, who will read from their own work. Gordon was released from the reformatory on parole last Tuesday.

Mass Meetings in Phila., Cleveland, Chicago

From the headquarters of the National Organizing Committee of the Cloakmakers' Union comes the announcement that mass meetings are to be held this week in Chicago, Cleveland and Philadelphia to acquaint the cloak and dressmakers with the results of the convention held by the reactionary officialdom of the International Union and with the decisions of the National Conference of the progressive delegates locked out of the fake convention.

The mass meeting in Chicago will be held tomorrow evening 7 o'clock in Peoples House, 2733 Hirsch Boulevard. Louis Hyman, chairman of the National Organizing Committee, will be the principal speaker. Other speakers will be the delegates elected by the Chicago union membership to the convention, but locked out by the Sigman and Schlesinger cliques.

Hyman Main Speaker.

Louis Hyman will also be the main speaker at the mass meeting to be held Saturday evening, May 26, in Cleveland. Leaders of the cloak and dressmakers here will also speak. The meeting will be held in Carpenters' Hall.

The Philadelphia mass meeting will be held the coming Wednesday immediately after work in Basiger Hall, Seventh and Pine Sts. Charles S. Zimmerman, one of the outstanding leaders in the struggles of the garment workers, is to be the main speaker. Harry Berlin and Saul Shelly, both of New York, will also speak.

Leaflets are being issued by the local sections of the N. O. C. calling the workers to these meetings.

a decent wage and improved working conditions. The action taken by the board in refusing to recognize the union is an attempt to crush it before it gains greater power.

Following the ultimatum presented by the school board, the Seattle Central Labor Council and the Washington State Federation of Labor have reported their intention of supporting the teachers in this fight for the right to organize. Instead of taking aggressive action in this matter, however, the labor officials have resorted to the courts for a temporary injunction to restrain the board from issuing the "yellow dog" contract and have emphasized the fact that the teachers will not use the strike weapon as they have a no-strike clause in their constitution.

In the meanwhile the capitalist press has come out in full support of the board's policies and speaks of the danger of "labor control" of the schools. The full force of capitalist machinery is being utilized in the effort to smash the union.

FERRY MISHAP DUE TO OVERCROWDING

Overcrowding and improper handling were responsible for the accident that occurred to the ferryboat Bronx on the evening of April 27, a grand jury investigation has established. The ferryboat shipped a huge wave off Robbins Reef and three people were washed overboard.

The designed in 1905 to carry a maximum of 1,500 passengers, there were 2,000 on board on the night of the accident, the grand jury charges, while in rush hours the boat often carried as many as 2,500. The grand jury also declares that the vehicles in the gangways were unevenly distributed, causing the boat to list. Capt. Arthur J. Hinchey is blamed for failure to reduce his speed while going thru the cross current off Robbins Reef.

Efforts are being made to hush up the loss of the three passengers. No indictment on this score was returned by the grand jury on the flimsy excuse that the loss of the three persons had never been proved and no bodies had been found. Passengers on the boat have testified, however, that the three persons were swept overboard and drowned.

The owners of the Bronx also escaped without a word of censure in the grand jury investigation.

Chicago Labor Picnic.

CHICAGO. — The Chicago section, Trade Union Educational League, will hold a picnic May 30 at Vail's Grove.

HAITIAN LIBERTY BIRTH IS

The birthday of the great black people commemorated in a memorial meeting of the American Negro Labor Congress, W. 30th Street.

This movement was started two years ago, and its growth is significant of the renewed interest which is being taken in the outstanding figures of the movement for the emancipation of the Negro race.

The speakers announced for the meeting are Richard B. Moore, of the American Negro Labor Congress, who will act as chairman; William Pickens, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Henry Rosemond, of the Haitian Patriotic Union; August V. Bernier of the Knights of Toussaint L'Ouverture; J. J. Adam, Haitian representative at the Geneva Conference, and others.

"A little more than a hundred years after Haiti's triumphant struggle against Napoleon for her complete independence, this island of the West Indies finds itself under the steel heels of American imperialism; a foreign control far more crushing and deadening than ever attended the political control of one state over another, Moore said last night.

L'Ouverture was born a slave in the French colony of Haiti, then known as Santo Domingo. When the revolution came in France at the close of the 18th century the revolutionary ideas of Danton and Robespierre found ready recruits among the toiling slaves and discontented mulattoes of the island. L'Ouverture was the foremost of the Santo Dominican leaders. He not only overthrew slavery throughout the island but carried on a successful struggle against Napoleon's Thermidoran policy of reaction and made way for the birth of the Republic of Haiti.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., May 18.—William D. Haywood, Communist and founder of the Industrial Workers of the World, died in Moscow today.

Death, caused by diabetes complicated by heart weakness, ended a lifetime spent in the revolutionary labor movement. He was 66 years old.

For several weeks Haywood had been in a weakened condition. The vitality with which he resisted his illness surprised the physicians which the government of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics assigned to treat him.

MILL BOSSES' GET TERMS TO SETTLE

Mill Committees Demand More Pay, Less Hours

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 17.—Answering to the loud cries of the mill owners and other business interests of the city that the city is suffering keenly the paralyzing influences of the 5 week-old anti-wage-cut strike of 80,000 textile workers here, W. T. Murdoch, secretary of the Textile Mill Committees of New England, sent a letter to the head of the cotton manufacturers association, calling upon the employers to reopen the mills on a schedule of a 40-hour week and a 20 per cent increase in wages. The reopening of the mills under such circumstances will serve "as a means of assuring work for all and prosperity to the city of New Bedford, its workers and merchants," the letter further said.

Opposes Compromise

The letter was addressed to Andrew Raeburn, president of the New Bedford Cotton Manufacturers' Association and calls for an answer within two days of receipt of the letter. It also states specifically that the reopening under these conditions takes place Monday, May 21.

Beside the original purpose of being an offensive against the bosses, the letter had other purposes, it was learned.

One was to categorically register a reply to the increasing capitalist propaganda that the workers should accept a compromise reduction in wages. The other was to head off the disruptive activity of some of the officials of the Textile Council who were furthering this boss propaganda.

Appoint Polish Organizer

The last was thoroughly explained at a membership meeting of the Textile Mill Committees on open lot on the south end. The Textile Council officialdom had appointed a Polish organizer to establish a branch of the Polish workers, when they saw that the Portuguese and Polish workers

WILLIAM D. HAYWOOD

Picture: Dr. Haywood, militant leader of the American workers, in Moscow yesterday after a painful illness.

W. D. HAYWOOD'S LIFE WAS ONE OF STRUGGLE

William D. Haywood was born in 1869 in Salt Lake City. His father and his stepfather were both miners. At the early age of nine he began his life of wage slavery. From 1885 until 1901 he worked underground in the mines of Nevada, Utah, Idaho and other states, with one interruption, when he "homesteaded" on government land; but this farm was reclaimed without compensation by the government, and he went back to the mines.

As a young lad at the time of the hanging of the Haymarket martyrs, he followed the story of their trials avidly in the papers, and recognized the ferocity of the ruling class. From this time he felt himself a rebel, and eagerly discussed the class struggle with an old miner who had been active in the Knights of Labor.

Joined Federation of Miners.

In 1896 Haywood joined the Western Federation of Miners, one of the most militant and advanced organizations of the American working class, which later joined with other groups to form the I. W. W.

"We know the class struggle in the west," Haywood said many years later. "The Western Federation of Miners is a fighting organization of the working class. It was born in jail and we are proud of our birth," he explained, speaking of the strike in 1892 which led to the jailing of miners and the subsequent forming of the union.

Haywood became the secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, and himself spent years in prison on its behalf.

Later he came under the influence of Debs and the socialist philosophy, and, until 1913, when he was "re-called" from the National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party, was one of its leading figures. He then became a leader of the left wing which arose during the struggles over "direct action" and which led to the triumph of the opportunists in 1912. Haywood then left the Socialist Party.

Founder of I. W. W.

The I. W. W. began its eventful career in 1905.

"This is the Continental Congress of the working class . . ." were Haywood's opening words to the Chicago convention in June 1905. "There is no organization that has for its purpose the same object as that for which you are called together today. . . . The American Federation of Labor is not a workingclass organization." He spoke of the A. F. of L. tendency to exclude all but the highly skilled from the ranks of organized labor.

HAYWOOD'S LIFE

Sarah Victor, DAILY WORKER agent in Detroit, is keeping up her good work in the auto city. She has sent in to the circulation department of The DAILY WORKER 35 new subscriptions. Five of these were secured, thru her efforts, from Pennsylvania coal miners. Sarah Victor does not content herself with her own territory, but tries to spread The DAILY WORKER wherever possible. These 35 new subscriptions mean that 35 workers will have The DAILY WORKER with them, fighting for them, inspiring them, telling them what their fellow-workers in other parts of the world are doing every week-day of the year. Thousands of other-workers would be strengthened in their struggle against the bosses, sections of the country, devoting all their energies to increasing the influence of the paper among the workers. All possible support should be given to these agents, who are active fighters in the class struggle, bringing to the workers the paper that is essential to them in their struggle.

instead of including all workers in its ranks.

Haywood first became a national figure in the labor movement in 1907, when he was prosecuted with Meyer and Pettibone, two other officers of the Western Federation of Miners. In one of the earlier American "frame-up" cases, charged with the murder of ex-governor Steiensen of Idaho.

William E. Borah brought himself into "liberal" prominence which he now has by acting as special prosecutor in the case and demanding the death penalty for Haywood, Meyer and Pettibone.

The I. W. W. at its second convention devoted almost half of its session to the case of the imprisoned leaders. The question of the general strike and other means of mass pressure to secure their release were considered. After about fifteen months in prison, the three militants were acquitted in July 1907. Their release was definitely attributed to the agitation conducted by the labor movement. In 1908 Haywood visited Europe, and there met leaders of the Confederation Generale du Travail. In 1910 he was delegated from the socialist party to the international labor and socialist congress in Copenhagen, where he spoke also for the I. W. W. and met many of the European leaders. After this congress he visited the mining districts of Great Britain.

Famous Lawrence Strike.

Haywood was associated with Ettore and Giovannitti in the great Lawrence strike in 1912. During the silk weavers' strike in Paterson he served three weeks in jail after refusing bail while other strikers were still imprisoned. He was sentenced to six months in jail for disorderly conduct in the Lowell strike.

As the entry of the United States into the world war became imminent, Haywood inevitably became a center of revolutionary opposition to the government. He was hounded at every step by department of justice agents and detectives. Early in 1920 he was arrested for violation of the espionage act and he, with ninety-one others, was convicted. Haywood, as the leader, was sentenced to twenty years imprisonment. After his conviction he left the United States for Europe.

seutions of every sort. Women and children have been treated with equal brutality.

How have the miners borne up under these conditions for nearly fourteen months in the face of the organized terrorism of the operators, the state and their own union officials? In the face of increasing starvation, illness and need?

Only those who know something of the miners' traditions of struggle, their indomitable spirit and courage can understand. But something more basic is behind this record struggle of the American labor movement: the fact that conditions in the mines have become definitely unendurable. Life is no longer possible on the old terms. It is literally: "Struggle or Starve," "Life or Death."

The Miners Speak.

It is this sort of message which the miners seek to convey to the workers of the country. The fight must go on but it cannot continue without help. Hundreds of appeals are sent in to the National Miners' Relief Committee, 611 Penn. Ave. weekly. "Food Will Save and Build the Union! Tents will afford childrer some protection from the rain; clothing will help cover the half-naked bodies; shoes will protect bare feet. The miners' struggle will go on—we, the miners, will continue because we have no other choice—but you, our brothers, must help!"

Moyer and Pettibone, two other officers of the Western Federation of Miners, in one of the earlier American "frame-up" cases, charged with the murder of ex-governor Steunens of Idaho.

William E. Borah brought himself into "liberal" prominence which he now has by acting as special prosecutor in the case and demanding the death penalty for Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone.

The I. W. W. at its second convention devoted almost half of its session to the case of the imprisoned leaders. The question of the general strike and other means of mass pressure to secure their release were considered. After about fifteen months in prison, the three militants were acquitted in July 1907. Their release was definitely attributed to the agitation conducted by the labor movement.

In 1908 Haywood visited Europe, and there met leaders of the Confederation Generale du Travail. In 1910 he was delegated from the socialist party to the international labor and socialist congress in Copenhagen, where he spoke also for the I. W. W., and met many of the European leaders. After this congress he visited the mining districts of Great Britain.

Famous Lawrence Strike.

Haywood was associated with Ettor and Giovannitti in the great Lawrence strike in 1912. During the silk weavers' strike in Paterson he served three weeks in jail after refusing bail while other strikers were still imprisoned. He was sentenced to six months in jail for disorderly conduct in the Lowell strike.

As the entry of the United States into the world war became imminent, Haywood inevitably became a center of revolutionary opposition to the government. He was hounded at every step by department of justice agents and detectives. Early in 1920 he was arrested for violation of the espionage act and he, with ninety-one others, was convicted. Haywood, as the leader, was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment. After his conviction he left the United States for the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

During the period of his trial and conviction, Haywood came to the conclusion that the only effective revolutionary struggle was through the Communist Party and the Communist International. He joined the Communist Party of America.

In the Soviet Union Haywood became the head of a co-operative community, the Kuzbas Colony, in Siberia, but his health, already shattered before his escape from America, broke down. He had been invalid during the last five years of his life in Soviet Russia. Just before his death he had finished writing the story of his life in the American class struggle, up to the point of his arrival in Russia.

Shortly before his death Haywood completed writing the story of his life, which is soon to be published by the International Publishers. Haywood was one of the founders of the International Labor Defense, the organization for aiding the defense of victims of capitalist courts in the class struggle.
